

South West Art Teachers

South West Art Teachers group meet twice a year to have a practical workshop and share ideas and lesson knowledge.

The Arts Society Kington Langley attends each session to talk to the teachers about how The Arts Society can help them financially. There is usually a different cohort of teachers each time so it enables me to increase the number of schools who are aware of us. The teachers come from a wide area and can then contact their local society

This workshop was on the value of free responsive drawing in response to music. Limited colours, a variety of mark making and the use of rubbers to create a landscape of marks

Emphasis for use back in schools was on no teacher feedback but allowing the students to develop ways to critique their own work and that of others.

The second half of the workshop meant that we had to work as a pair with rules laid out before hand and then working in silence to the music. This allowed each person to develop coping strategies to work with another person on the same page

PowerPoint of the workshop will be sent to all teachers
